

Mineral Industries of Minnesota

including regions of known but undeveloped resources

Copyright 1998, Minnesota Department of Natural Resources. The doctrine is intended to provide general information on types and frequency of current mining and quarrying operations in Minnesota, and areas with potential for future mineral operations. The data presented here should neither be interpreted as necessarily locationally precise nor exhaustive. The data shown do not include the many construction sand and gravel operations in the state. The map may be reproduced for educational purposes. For more detailed information, contact the Minnesota DNR, Minerals Division.